

Contents

Foreword vii

Acknowledgements ix

- 1 African economies at the start of the 21st century 1
  - Poverty and income inequality are widespread and severe . . . 2
  - . . . but near-universal growth reveals Africa's potential 4
  - External trade losses outweigh gains 6
- 2 Progressing towards sustainable growth and poverty reduction 9
  - Economic sustainability brings long-term results 9
  - Expanding the Economic Policy Stance Index 13
  - Sustainability and good policy stance go hand in hand 16
- 3 Obstacles to Africa's development 18
  - Low initial income puts Africa behind 20
  - Investment gains are fragile 22
  - Institutions and good governance are the foundation of growth 23
- 4 Human assets for Africa's development 28
  - Poor health perpetuates poverty 28
  - Scientific and technological capacity is key to modern development 30
  - The benefits of higher education could be much greater 31
- 5 Structural transformation 33
  - Service sector growth dwarfs agriculture and industry 33
  - Sectoral dynamism boosts resource-based industrialization 37
  - Human capital enhances productivity growth 40
  - Can Africa achieve per capita growth of 4.4% a year? 41
- 6 Setting the development agenda for the 21st century 48
  - Growth must be broad-based and equitable 49
  - Reforms can boost savings and investment 50
  - Human capital development should focus on quantity and quality 51
  - Resource-based industrialization will enable competition in the global economy 51
  - Agriculture and rural development will benefit from targeted investments and fewer constraints 53
  - Environmental protection is part of sustainable development 54
  - The challenges of a global trading system are significant—but surmountable 54
  - Regional integration before global integration 56
  - Public-private partnerships will speed science and technology development 58

Successful development requires more aid—and more effective aid	58
What is the government's role in managing institutions and the economy?	59
Strong leaders and key stakeholders will set the right priorities	60

Annexes

1	African GDP and GDP growth rates by region, 1998 and 1999	62
2	African GDP and GDP growth rates by country group, 1998 and 1999	64
3	African population and per capita income by region, 1998 and 1999	66
4	African population and per capita income by country group, 1998 and 1999	68
5	African sectoral distribution of GDP by region, 1980 and 1999 (percent)	70
6	Construction of Economic Sustainability Index and Sustained Growth Index	72
7	Construction of Economic Policy Stance Index and expanded index	77
8	Notes on the Country Sustainability Assessment Survey	80

References 83

Boxes

1.1	The forgotten face of poverty: the urban poor	3
1.2	Mozambique's miracle?	5
2.1	How Uganda achieved growth and poverty reduction	13
2.2	Moving towards gender equity	16
3.1	How Mali and Senegal reduced fraud in customs administration	24
3.2	Are Burundian conflicts ethnic?	25
3.3	Civil conflict hinders structural transformation	26
4.1	The economic implications of HIV/AIDS	29
5.1	Equatorial Guinea grows rapidly but does not reduce poverty	34
5.2	Food outlook grim in Sub-Saharan Africa	35
5.3	Progress in the G8, G14, G18	38
5.4	Foreign direct investment reaches a record high—but not in Africa	45
6.1	Some progress made—and more still to go—in reaching gender equity in education	52
6.2	Should Africa go regional or multilateral?	55
6.3	Improving Africa's opportunities in the World Trade Organization	56
6.4	Regional approaches in air transport will improve competitiveness	57
6.5	Telecommunication's link to poverty makes it critical to development	59

Figures

1.1	Growth of GDP and population, 1990–99	1
2.1	Economic Sustainability Index scores by region, 1999	11
2.2	Population shares by cluster rating, Economic Sustainability Index, 1999	11
2.3	Expanded Economic Policy Stance Index scores by region, 1999	14

- 2.4 Expanded Economic Policy Stance Index by cluster rating: population shares, 1999 14
- 3.1 Impact of AIDS on projected life expectancy for seven Sub-Saharan countries, 1987 and 1999 18
- 3.2 Global GDP and population shares, 1999 20
- 3.3 Africans affected by civil conflict, by region, 1963–98 27
- 4.1 People living with HIV/AIDS, 1999 29
- 4.2 Number of university students in selected countries, 1996 31
- 5.1 Evolution of output and production structure and GDP for Sub-Saharan Africa and Malaysia, Indonesia, and Thailand, 1980–96 39
- 5.2 Foreign direct investment flows as a percentage of gross fixed capital formation, top 20 countries, 1996–98 (percent) 46

Tables

- 1.1 Income distribution in rural and urban Africa by income quintile, 1990s (percent) 4
- 1.2 Distribution of African countries by real GDP growth, 1995–99 (number of countries) 4
- 1.3 Economic growth in Africa by region, 1998 and 1999 5
- 1.4 Growth rates of countries by economic group 7
- 1.5 Population and income characteristics of African countries by economic group, 1999 7
- 1.6 Value, volume, and unit value of exports and imports—and terms of trade, 1996–99 (percent) 7
- 1.7 Balance of payments, 1996–99 (billions of dollars) 8
- 2.1 Economic Sustainability Index scores and ranking by country, 1999 10
- 2.2 Economic Policy Stance Index scores and ranking by country, 1999 12
- 2.3 Average qualitative raw scores by category 15
- 2.4 Expanded Economic Policy Stance Index, 1999 17
- 2.5 Correlation matrix—change in indexes and income, 1987 and 1999 17
- 3.1 Income and population at the end of the 20th century 21
- 3.2 Investment rates in Africa, 1974–96 (percent) 22
- 4.1 Scientific and technological capacities by region, 1995 (percent) 30
- 4.2 Number of university students in the sciences in countries with similar populations and resources 31
- 5.1 Structural transformation of African economies, 1960–69 and 1990–98 (percent of GDP) 34
- 5.2 Sectoral dynamism 38
- 5.3 Growth of labour share in agricultural and non-agricultural sectors, 1961–90 (percent) 40
- 5.4 Sources of factor productivity growth in the G5, annual averages, various years (percentage points) 40
- 5.5 The effect of labour reallocation on factor productivity growth, annual averages, 1961–90 (percent) 41

- 5.6 Shares of sectoral output and growth rate, annual averages, 1960–96 (percent) 42
- 5.7 Required growth and investment to achieve sectoral growth and resource-based industrialization 43
- 5.8 Domestic investment and savings, 1974–96 (percent of GDP) 44
- 5.9 Debt and debt service, 1996–99 46
- 6.1 Nutrition-based poverty in seven African countries, various years (percent) 49
- 6.2 Quantitatively important changes in the distribution of expenditure in seven African countries, various years 53
- 6.3 Changes in world commodity prices, 1996–99 (percent) 53