Location: Nairobi, Kenya

Venue: Tribe Hotel

1. Background

The United Nations Economic Commission for Africa (ECA) and the African Union Commission (AUC) are collaborating on the project titled "International Migration in Africa: Shaping a Positive Narrative and Removing Barriers to Mobility." This initiative is focused on promoting economic empowerment among returnee migrant women, particularly domestic workers, in Ethiopia, Kenya, and Uganda. It seeks to explore essential themes related to women's economic empowerment and enhance their participation in various economic activities.

The global landscape of migration has evolved significantly, with over 1 billion individuals currently on the move since the Second World War. Among these, approximately 281 million are international migrants while 750 million are domestic migrants. This dynamic phenomenon offers both opportunities and challenges for both origin and destination countries, revealing the need for a nuanced understanding of the realities faced by migrants. Notably, the economic empowerment of migrant women, who often face compounded vulnerabilities, has emerged as a critical area of focus.

Migrant women often find themselves in low-paying, informal, and precarious roles, exposing them to economic exploitation and rights violations. Addressing these vulnerabilities is not only vital for the wellness of the migrants but also for the socioeconomic development of their home communities upon their return. Hence, targeted interventions to support their economic activities and aspirations are necessary.

In recognition of these dynamics, the project "International Migration in Africa: Shaping a Positive Narrative and Removing Barriers to Mobility" is pivotal in addressing migration-related challenges across Africa. This workshop aims to validate the findings from assessments conducted by UNECA in Kenya, outlining strategies that promote the economic empowerment of returnee migrant women and facilitate their successful reintegration into local economies.

The Report Validation Workshop represents a vital opportunity for stakeholder engagement and collaboration focused on the economic empowerment of returnee migrant women, particularly domestic workers. By validating the country assessment report, the workshop will guide the strategic direction of the AUC/ECA initiatives aimed at enhancing the livelihoods of these women while simultaneously establishing a positive narrative around migration in Africa. Your participation is essential to ensuring the success and impact of the workshop's outcomes. This concept note serves to invite stakeholders to join in this important dialogue, ultimately aimed at enhancing the economic empowerment of migrant women and reinforcing community resilience across the African region.
