1. Introduction: Adopting the Beijing agenda of 1995

Sudan has long been party to the Beijing plan of action throughout the decades. In 1995 the world’s women, including the delegation from Sudan, met in Beijing, produced a document for governments to adopt. This was a milestone for advancing women’s rights and equality. Twelve critical thematic areas of concern were identified as important to address challenges that deter participation of women in both public and private life.

The twelve areas of concern are:

1) Poverty
2) Education and training
3) Health
4) Violence against women
5) Armed conflict
6) The economy
7) Power and decision-making
8) Institutional mechanisms
9) Human rights
10) Media
11) The environment
12) Girl Child

The Sudanese government responded most positively. The government issued Decree No.50/203 of December 1995 for implementing 1995 program of action, followed by Decree No. 22 of 1996, which created a National Commission for producing the National Plan for the Advancement of Women. The Commission was under the auspices of Fatima Khalid Ahmed the wife of the President El Bashir and chaired by then State Minister in the Ministry of Social Planning. Membership included representatives from civil society, popular organizations, academics, and national personalities.
Section I

Analysis of achievements and challenges since 1995

- Major achievements in promoting gender equality and empowerment of Women.
- Major challenges encountered in Achieving Gender Equality.
- Constitutional, legislative and legal developments in promotion of gender equality and empowerment of women.
- Share approximate dimensions of the national budget, which invest in the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of women.
- Implementation and coordination mechanisms between the Government and civil society.
- Bilateral cooperation, regional, sub-regional & international, to monitor the implementation of Beijing Declaration & Platform for Action.
- Millennium Development Goals and its role in facilitating the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action.
2. Achievements in gender mainstreaming in national plans and policies

The state of Sudan pursued plans for the advancement of women according to the Beijing program’s twelve points. It initiated the National Plan for 1998 to 2002. Funds were allocated amounting to 4 million SDG for implementing the Plan.

The 25 year National Plan for 2003-2027 incorporated women’s advancement by focusing on the contribution of women to the Renaissance of the Sudanese society. By 2007 the commission tasked with writing a policy commiserate with the pillars of the Beijing Platform completed what became the National Women Empowerment Policy, endorsed by the President of the country in 2007. The policy focused on 6 pillars for empowering women: education, health (including environment and hygiene), political participation, peace and conflict resolution, economic empowerment and human rights. The institution named for coordinating and providing technical assistance for gender mainstreaming and implementation of the Women Empowerment Policy throughout the government institutions and civil society is the General Directorate for Women and Family Affairs in the federal Ministry of Welfare and Social Security, which is replicated at state level.

The two Five Year Plans of 2007 - 2011 and 2012 - 2016 concentrate on economic empowerment, combating poverty, creating opportunity for work and equal opportunity for women in the fields of agriculture, industry and commerce, supported by microfinance schemes which tackle poverty of rural women and generates small business for women, poorer families and female-headed households. In the formal sector, women are given access to the social insurance funds, health insurance and pensions. Social assistance has been introduced for the neediest families, including in-kind support and cash transfers. Promotion of water projects are regarded as essential for economic empowerment of women.

The two Five Year National Plans cover the following executive actions:

- Conduct surveys to identify gender gaps, in macro-policies of the State, has been devising indicators of women's empowerment in the different States.

- Follow a national policy for the empowerment of women: approved by the Council of Ministers in March 2007, with reference to the Constitution of Sudan, and national laws, regional and international conventions, and empower women through six different themes.

- A detailed plan for implementing policy

- Re-enforce the 2008 National Strategy for F as it the fundamental social pillar and nees to enjoy its full rights.

- Develop a national strategy to combat violence against women, prevent negative discrimination against women and combat harmful traditional practices that diminish their dignity.
- Aim national disabilities policies at the protection of women with disabilities and their integration into society, through rehabilitation, training, health care, education, and employment.

- Incorporate in the national strategy to combat HIV/AIDS a therapeutic dimension, and prevention, through education, and protection for children and mothers.

- National Youth Strategy is to concentrate on making youth productive and to promote their cognitive, cultural and health awareness as well as promote infrastructure development for youth to deal with leisure, and employment and reduce poverty among youth of both sexes

- The Higher Council for Agricultural Renewal is to include gender issues and promote reduction of poverty.

- The Interim poverty reduction n strategy paper of the MoFNE is a priority and needs to aim at achieving universal primary education by the year 2015 as means to achieve gender equality.

- National policy to combat homelessness is to protect and promote the well-being of children, improve the conditions of families and reduce displacement.

- National policy for aged persons is to protect and care for the elderly, health care and social security.

  – National population policy focuses on women and justice, and aims to empower women, develop their potential, and all their civil and political rights, and to promote their participation in the policy development process as well as achieve safe motherhood, childhood, It aims to reduce by 2031 mortality reduction from 216 to 73 per 100,000 live births.

  - By 2031, use of family planning methods is to increase from 9% to 39%.

  - A national drug control policy, laws and awareness-raising, care, and support of development institutions, academic institutions and the training of staff working in the areas of awareness and treatment will be enforced.

3. Constitutional Guarantees

The Sudan Interim Constitution of 2005 Section II of Article 32 guarantees the rights of women and children in the enjoyment of all civil, political, social, cultural and economic, including the right to equal pay for equal work and other related benefits

4. Achievements in the creation of national women machinery

- The Ministry of Welfare and Social Security is the location for the General Directorate for Women and Family Affairs, responsible for developing strategies, plans and policies for the advancement of women and to oversee their operationalization.

- Most secotral ministries and commissions have created departments for gender and gender mainstreaming in their respective ministries and commissions (e.g. Central Bureau of Statistics, National Strategic Planning Council). Ministries with gender units or focal points are health, justice, labor, education, agriculture, animal husbandry, interior, foreign Affairs, finance and national economy.

- At the universities, the development studies of the University of Khartoum has a women’s department, Ahfad’s Women’s University has a Regional Institute of studies of gender and diversity, peace and human rights. Other universities offering gender studies are Islamic University, International University of Africa-Sudan.

- Some banks have facilities for women development and productive families such as:- Omdurman National Bank, the Agricultural Bank, the Family Bank, the Savings and Social Development Bank, Bank of the Ministry of Welfare and Social Security.

- Establishment of a Committee for community development in the National legislative assembly and dealing with community issues by focusing on women's and children's issues,

- Important civil society organizations for women include the General Federation of Sudanese Women, Salma, Muwatinat (legal aid), AIDS infected associations, forum for combating violence against women.

- An initiative exist to establish schools for the development of society, within the framework of the partnership between the high institutions of education and the Ministry of Welfare and Social Security.

5. Achievements in education

The most important achievements in the area of education, the high rate of assimilation of girls, in the primary school: gender gap dropped from 12.6% to 8.3% in 2007. This is due to the State adopting the Millennium development goals, he recommendations of the Conference on education for all, a presidential decree issued on mandatory education for all based on the principles of equity, justice, gender equality. The education strategy for 2002027 provides for universal basic education with increasing enrolment and reduction of drop-out rates, quality teacher training, adult education and literacy, financial literacy for women, and state directorates for girls’ education including nomadic girls, the rate of which went from 0 to 10%.

Obstacles to universal education include poverty, customs and traditions that inhibit girls’ chores, local curriculum not linked to the environment and the needs of society.

6. Achievements in health

The State adopted policies and strategies to reduce maternal mortality from 509 per 100,000 live births (safe motherhood survey 1999-2002) to 216 per 100,000 live births (family survey 2010).

Strategy has been developed to reduce the socio-economic and cultural causes of maternal morality.

The Medical Council prohibited the practice of female genital mutilation by health professionals.
A Supreme Committee was formed comprising the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Welfare and Social Security, Ministry of Justice, and a network of voluntary organizations working in the field to develop a law barring female circumcision.

A national strategic plan to combat HIV/AIDS, was developed with an estimated prevalence rate of smoking among the population (0.5% for males and 0.7% for females), and remains low due in part to cultural traditions among communities that slow the spread of the disease.

7. Achievements in the fight against poverty and economic empowerment for women:

There is no doubt that the economic empowerment of women, and the fight against poverty is one of the key factors in the integration of gender in the reforms, and macroeconomic policies, and the provision of health services, and education overall, and their full integration into economic activity, and in this regard, several policies and strategies, For the economic empowerment of women and combating poverty, especially widows, divorced women, migrant women, women with disabilities, and apply of macro-economic policies, to achieve the objectives of the national strategy for poverty alleviation, 2002 – 2020, consisting of a package of macroeconomic policies to achieve the objectives of the strategy one quarter of the cornea, and progress has been developing a strategy to reduce poverty for the period 2002-2004.

- Issuing policies of microfinance, with the aim of encouraging and developing economic and social banking, to alleviate poverty in less developed rural areas, and women to empower them economically and socially, where the policies of the Central Bank of Sudan, 12% of the credit ceilings for commercial banks to microfinance, 70 percent of which is directed to rural areas, 30% for women.

- Preparation of an integrated strategy for addressing the problem of inertia graduates into program-short term for the period of 2005-2008.

- Enforcement of those policies and strategies for combating poverty, and the economic empowerment of women, the State has established many mechanisms and financial institutions including: - The microfinance unit
  – Central Bank of Sudan-women's microfinance portfolio-the savings and Social Development Bank, women represent more than 60% of the recipients
  - Establishment of social funds (social solidarity fund-student support fund.)
  – and the Zakat to support poor families, particularly women.
  - Create wallets for irrigated and rain-fed, to women farmers.
  - The SME guarantee fund for women.
  - Establishment of social centres for the development of women, working to train and raise women's capacities in the areas of production and marketing.
  - Specialized branches for women in financial institutions-Bank dedicated to financing for families-family Bank.
-The Union of businesswomen to Federation of employers.

- The composition of the High Council for agricultural revival, includes seven departments, including the Department of combating poverty and providing jobs. - Because of the importance of training and qualification of women for economic empowerment, have been holding training courses in the areas of productivity and industry, and in the preparation and implementation of projects, feasibility study and assessment, monitoring and reporting.

And the above achievements are achievements of the President for the following:- first, it reaffirms the commitment of the State, towards women's empowerment and development economically, socially and politically, and that these achievements are the primary focus of the development of women and institutional mechanisms and technical support, logistical, and helped to identify gaps in various areas based on studies that have been And then work on bridging these gaps, to help decision makers and planners and implementers.

- Led to public awareness of gender issues for decision makers in the State, which has led to gender in policies, strategies and sectoral plans and programmes of ministries and in all axes related to women's empowerment and gender equality are fair, and that evidence of this is the gender in policies and strategies, the various State institutions, And research and academic institutions, funding institutions, civil society organizations and the private sector.

Confirmation of the political commitment of the State towards women's issues, the national policy for the empowerment of women, with six axes, which works to strengthen women's capacities, develop their skills, thereby resulting in the development of operational plans for policy, which led to the improvement of health services, educational, and economic conditions of women, empowering them economically, socially and politically, and legally, And active participation in peace-building.

- Operational plans also worked for politics, the economic empowerment of women and improvement of their status, through the provision of financial services, and enable them to access, resulting in the reduction of poverty among women.

Main challenges that hindered gender equality and empowerment of women:-

- Lack of financial resources, domestic and global, that impact negatively on women's programmes. - Debt overhang of Sudan-customs, traditions and practices, negative-low level of education and health — widening of the geographic and poor infrastructure.

- Bias policy, for major projects without the SMEs to which women-scarce trained human resources as a result of internal and external migration — and the economic embargo imposed on Sudan, which has led to a lack of resources, utilization of technologies-and the high percentage of illiteracy and despite efforts at reduction.

- Lack of studies, research and in-depth surveys identify gaps in various areas of women-the lack of data and information disaggregated by type-the lack of adequate data and information as the impact of poverty on women, particularly rural women's lack of information on gender based violence-negative customs and traditions that restrict women's participation in some activities.
These are major challenges for the following reasons:

Women's issues are cross-cutting, multidimensional and interrelated, which requires, providing considerable budgets for programmes, projects and activities for women, and that in all respects, and that the budgets allocated for the implementation of those plans and programmes is limited, resulting in scattered activities and unsustainable, and lacked effective mechanisms in the process of evaluation and follow-up, Especially at the State level.

Customs, traditions and heritage, negative, stand without educational institutions, resulting in high illiteracy rates, the lack of women's access to technologies, to improve the production and productivity. Poor training, rehabilitation and capacity-building for staff working in the areas of health and education, leads to poor service delivery in the resulting negative effects on women.

There is no doubt that the economic embargo imposed on Sudan negative consequences on women, as follows:-take advantage of the support provided to women by the donors particularly in the field of development. -Double tap new technologies and successful experiences of developed countries. -Poor infrastructure as a result of the expansion of the Sudan, which resulted in weak basic services for women.

In the areas of: health, education, poverty reduction, training, rehabilitation and capacity-building. The weak gender responsive budgeting hinders the implementation of strategies and operational plans developed to address these challenges. And continue to the attention of the state in all its institutions, and concerned with the development and strengthening of the role of women, to perform multiple roles, you may have several policies and strategies:-the comprehensive national strategy:-where a special space devoted to the integration of women in all sectors.

Mechanisms for regular dialogue between Government and civil society:-

- Civil society organizations are active partners in the implementation of plans and programmes for women at the grassroots level, and in this regard the Ministry of welfare and social security management for organizations and women's associations, the women and the family and of its tasks and functions: O develop orientations and priorities for the work of women's organizations and associations in all matters relating to the promotion of women and the family. cooperation with organizations and women's associations in the implementation of joint projects-proposal of priority programmes and provide the necessary support for enforcement-coordinating the joint efforts of women's organizations and associations on the one hand, and between them and the relevant segments in all matters relating to the training of women and develop their On the other hand- and to collect and provide data and statistics related to work of women's organizations and associations to develop the capacities of women as assigns in determining future visions.

- There is a network of voluntary organizations working in the areas of women's development, and came from the recommendation of the national organizations working in the field of women's development, the importance of building a network for coordination between them and official bodies working in the field and the network was established in 1999 in order to achieve the following objectives:--
- Coordination and cooperation between official bodies and voluntary women's capacity-building of member organizations through the Organization of joint projects and programmes—collect, monitor and exchange information.

- Exchange of experience with networks and regional organizations and bodies and the specialized agencies of the United Nations.

- The material and moral support and technical network and resources. And participation in the follow-up and implementation of international and regional conventions on women.

- Network means are used to achieve these goals the most important seminars and workshops, publication of periodicals information bank training and studies and research. O there are many networks as mechanisms for coordination among the organizations working in the area, such as the networks of organizations working in the field (AIDS-Environment-peace).

- There are Sudanese Council of voluntary associations (ASKWA) was founded in 1979 and is a voluntary mechanism for coordination and information exchange between national and international voluntary associations operating in the Sudan.

- Under the Ministry's partnership approach involved voluntary organizations and women's organizations, academia, and the private sector, in developing an action plan for the advancement of women and the national policy for the empowerment of women, and the national strategy for the family, and in all strategies, policies and operational plans, and implementation, monitoring and evaluation, as the Ministry is training and capacity-building for the Civil society organizations in all areas of women's empowerment.

The main bilateral cooperation – regional or subregional levels to support the exchange of knowledge and experience:—there are Ministry of international cooperation and of reference: plans and policies of international cooperation for the development and reconstruction — attracting foreign resources and grants provided by States and international organizations and institutions, regional coordination - Follow-up to the implementation of the conventions on international cooperation and coordination of relations with external organizations.

There are also High Commission for humanitarian aid and of the terms of reference of the management work of the voluntary organizations and foreign countries, United Nations agencies and other international organizations under the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in coordination with the Ministry of finance and other relevant actors.

At the level of the Ministry of welfare and social security are the Department of external cooperation functions to strengthen cooperation with a view to creating an international environment favourable to social development, to contribute to the strengthening of global partnership in achieving social development through the signing of memorandums of understanding and agreements and protocols with brotherly and friendly States.

The State, represented by the various sectoral institutions, many of these joint cooperation for the empowerment of women and training and support in all areas, with plenty of international voluntary organizations such as: (Blanc Sudan – say – UNESCO ... Etc), and the Office of disarmament and reintegration, and United Nations agencies, for example:-the UN women UNDP-UNFPA-UNESCO, IFAD (International Fund for agriculture development). World Food

Section four

Emerging issues beyond the year 2015:

Emerging issues beyond the year 2015 are:

- women in conflict areas and refugee camps: the armed disputes and conflicts of the main obstacles that threaten women in development as the most vulnerable as they face displacement, homelessness, disease, ignorance and poverty and the burden of household and inability to planning and training. This actually make women impeded their development led to the non-utilization of the services of the State and increased the burden on them. Add to that the wars and conflicts in neighboring countries and the attendant of migration of large numbers of citizens to other States. What provoked the armed conflicts in South Sudan of massive emigration to Sudan of the internal conflicts that have produced negative impacts on some segments of Sudanese society and have had the greatest impact on women, particularly rural women, Where lost a breadwinner and children, destruction of infrastructure and insecurity and the deterioration in the humanitarian and economic situation and environmental and social and health services, preventive and educational, although rural women's production skills and adapt to various circumstances the reverse migration to cities coping environment nature, which led to the abuse of marginal occupations cut off from development.

These evolving circumstances and despite the efforts of State capacity in the area of legislation and policies, and in education and health, equal employment opportunities in addition to the funding policy advocacy for gender and microfinance policies in favour of women, but the challenge remains substantial in the Sudan were deprived of their legitimate right to external debt relief and the financing of development and the unilateral economic blockade.

Which requires the concerted efforts of the international community and all its institutions to support development projects in
