status of the implementation of the Continental Free Trade Area. The secretariat also made a presentation on the Africa Regional Forum on Sustainable Development, which included the road map for the 2020 session of the Forum. The Committee considered the report on strategies and policies for the integration of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises in the industrialization process in Southern Africa and the report presented to the ad hoc expert group meeting on harmonization of regional industrialization strategies and policies in Southern Africa.

IV. Observations

10. The Committee made the following observations on the main clusters of issues deliberated:

   (a) Report on economic and social conditions in Southern Africa in 2018:

      (i) Climate change continued to have an impact on livelihoods through loss of life, damage to infrastructure and adverse impacts on economic growth, and therefore needed to be incorporated into national development strategies;

      (ii) The intensifying trade wars, slowing global growth, heightened social and political tensions in the region and beyond, and the severe drought situation in Southern Africa, had adverse effects on the agriculture and energy sectors;

      (iii) Rising public debt was negatively affecting macroeconomic stability, and undermining the capacity of member States to finance social economic development priorities and meet the Sustainable Development Goals;

      (iv) The business confidence necessary to enhance investment and employment creation had suffered from political, economic and corporate governance deficits, including corruption, policy inconsistencies and uncertainties in various sectors of the economy;

      (v) The potential contribution of the private sector, in particular micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, needed stronger government support to drive growth and create employment;

      (vi) The entry into force in 2019 of the Agreement Establishing the African Continental Free Trade Area provided both opportunities and challenges for deeper intracontinental trade and faster implementation of the industrialization agenda;

      (vii) Poor governance of State-owned enterprises throughout the region continued to undermine public service delivery, as a result of their drain on the fiscus;
(b) Report on programme performance of ECA in Southern Africa: The work programme for 2019 was consistent with the recommendations of its twenty-fourth session, and the 2020 programme plan for the work of ECA in Southern Africa was endorsed;

(c) Report on the implementation of regional and international agendas and other special initiatives in the subregion: progress and status of the African Continental Free Trade Area:

(i) Four countries in the SADC region – Eswatini, Namibia, South Africa and Zimbabwe – had ratified the Agreement Establishing the African Continental Free Trade Area, and it was considered important to mobilize the rest of the countries to ratify the Agreement and support its implementation;

(ii) There was need for strong outreach to the private sector, including micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, on the African Continental Free Trade Area;

(d) Report on the study on harmonization of industrial policies and strategies in Southern Africa:

(i) The Committee noted the importance and timeliness of the study, and urged ECA to finalize it, taking into consideration the gaps and issues identified and the recommendations proffered at the meeting;

(ii) It was noted that weak institutional structures at the national level undermined the incorporation in local legislation and frameworks and implementation of regional industrial policies and strategies;

(iii) Industrial policy formulation was considered important, and should be fully informed by and aligned with regional strategies, anchored to full consultation with all stakeholders, and supported by up-to-date disaggregated statistics;

(e) Report on strategies and policies for the integration of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises in the industrialization process in Southern Africa:

(i) The study was important and timely, and the Committee urged ECA to finalize it, taking into consideration the gaps and issues identified and the recommendations proffered at the meeting;

(ii) Micro, small and medium-sized enterprises were key to driving the industrialization process in the region; however, these economies faced diverse challenges, such as limited access to finance and markets, poor organizational and technical capacity, inadequate infrastructure, an unfavourable policy environment and obstacles to participating in value chains;

(iii) Business-to-business linkages and partnerships between micro, small and medium-sized enterprises and large firms were limited;

(iv) Government support for registration and capacity-building to micro, small and medium-sized enterprises was inadequate, and that emphasis should be placed on streamlining regulations, facilitating access to finance and inclusive procurement;
(v) The Committee noted the important role of women, young people and other marginalized groups in the micro, small and medium-sized enterprises sector and the importance of targeted interventions to tackle the specific challenges faced by these groups;

(f) Presentation on the Africa Regional Forum on Sustainable Development: The Regional Forum and voluntary national reviews were important mechanisms in helping countries to advance and implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Agenda 2063 of the African Union, and therefore welcomed the convening of the forthcoming 2020 Regional Forum in Zimbabwe;

(g) Launch of the ECA flagship knowledge products: The Committee commended ECA and partners for conducting research and producing the following invaluable knowledge products for member States and other stakeholders to use as a basis for evidence-based decision-making and policy and strategy formulation at national and regional levels:

(i) Eswatini 2018 structural transformation, employment, production and society (STEPS) profile;

(iii) Assessing Regional Integration in Africa: Next Steps for the African Continental Free Trade Area;

Member States that have not undertaken voluntary national reviews should conduct them in an inclusive manner, with a view to invigorating the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and Agenda 2063 to achieve the goals within the set time frame.

Member States and other stakeholders should actively participate in the 2020 Africa Regional Forum on Sustainable Development and contribute to the identification of specific policies and actions to accelerate the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and Agenda 2063.
