

Optimizing mining revenues and relationships thanks to price determination

One of the most important elements of a mining regime that attempts to optimize the impact of development is the establishment of a fair market value for resources- the “price determination system”. A transparent and competitive division into concessions of known mining resources may help... The African mining vision aims to establish an efficient and transparent fiscal regime that will serve as a catalyst of social and material infrastructure and one that is necessary for knowledge dissemination. African mining countries will have to explore more transparent and more competitive concession systems, particularly for the marketing of known mining resources. Such a system could help to maximize the impact of mining resources on development via the inclusion of various links in bids.
